School letter on 'chasing games' upsets parents

Tag, you're in trouble. Critics say education system is babying kids too much

JEREMY NOLAÏS

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Furious parents took to social media Thursday to condemn a letter sent home to a Calgary parent from a public-school teacher in which she advocated against any recess activities involving "chasing."

Father David Kemlo told Metro he could hardly believe his eyes as he scrolled through the teacher's concerns about the activities of his six-year-old son during a recess session at his southwest elementary school Tuesday.

The educator, whom Metro agreed with Kemlo not to name, indicates that a child became hurt or upset during a "chasing game," and said she would be discussing "strategies" to prevent future occurrences.

"Chasing is dangerous because we lose control of our bodies and others get hurt, as they did today," she wrote. "Both children chasing and the children being chased have a responsibility to stop chasing games. If they cannot do this independently they are encouraged to see a supervisor."

Dozens of parents took to Facebook to express frustration related to the over-protection of kids; some decried the apparent assault on popular recess pastimes like tag.

For his part, Kemlo deemed the letter "silly."

"To take the time to print out the generic letter and use all these general terms and you're going to sit down and have discussions with six-year-olds about strategies? Like, give me a break," he said in an interview. "It's a little ridiculous."

South of the border, some school boards have enforced outright bans of tag games, cartwheels and various activities involving balls, citing student safety. But the Calgary Board of Education said in an email it does not have system-wide policies concerning recess activities.

"The CBE encourages principals and teachers to look for opportunities to encourage safe play and the prevention of injuries," an unidentified spokesperson said in an email.

Man charged in $6M investment and immigration fraud schemes

A Calgary man has been charged in two separate Ponzi schemes that preyed on Calgary's Asian community, totaling in excess of $6 million.

Chi-Ho Chan, 38, also known as Moses Chan, was charged with two counts of fraud over $5,000.

"In February of 2010, the Calgary Police Service began an investigation after a man claimed he had operated an investment and immigration scheme over the past five years, targeting members of the Asian community," said Staff Sgt. Kristie Verheul of the economic crimes unit.

"It is alleged he offered investors the opportunity to support his electronics importing business, CI Computers, asking them to loan him money by way of a promissory note," she added. The investors would benefit from the store's electronics sales sold in the United States.

In a separate case, the accused also allegedly offered assistance to investors with their immigration process through a franchise fee, defrauding potential immigrants of approximately $30,000 to $50,000 per person.

Police allege the accused did not offer any assistance to potential immigrants over a nine-year period, and believe there are more than 300 victims of the scheme, with a total loss of $700,000. Police encourage anyone that has been a victim of this type of fraud to contact them at 403-266-1234.

After losing her beau in a tragic skydiving accident, Jessica Dubiel vowed Thursday to carry on his adventurous spirit.

While she's only once experienced the thin air of a sky-high leap, Dubiel's 34-year-old soul mate Mike Koo was known as a veteran daredevil.

"I definitely want to be skydiving myself," she said.

"It's for Mike, it's for living life, it's for what he lived for," Dubiel said Thursday. "He loved skydiving — he loved every adventure he could get."

Those adventures included base-jumping, snowmobiling and water-powered jetpacking.

Koo was found dead June 7 about 9 p.m. after spending the day skydiving near the central Alberta town of Innisfail.

"On his final jump other sky divers in the group advised that something didn't seem quite right," RCMP officials said in an e-mail release.

Koo's body was found in a field near the runway.

Dave Withrow of Skydive Big Sky confirmed Koo was at the Innisfail-area operation.

Withrow described it as a busy weekend with roughly 20 to 25 planeloads counted, and he estimated the mishap occurred on Koo's third or fourth jump of the day.

He was in another aircraft when the accident happened, but suggested it's likely the parachute never opened at 4,000 feet above ground.

"We don't know why it happened," Withrow said. "Some instability issues, possibly, but loss of altitude awareness is what happened."

Celebration of life

A celebration of Koo's life will be held in the Chapel of Mountain View Funeral Home on Saturday at 2 p.m.

- Koo was certified through the Canadian Sport Parachuting Association and had "somewhere between 200 and 300 jumps" under his belt, according to an official with the sky-diving company.
- The man's family declined to comment through a friend.

"We felt like we won the lottery."

The home had everything we wanted. All within our budget."

Empty Shoe Campaign. Kelly-Anne McGillis recounts nearly dying at the hands of impaired driver

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

On Saturday, Kelly-Anne McGillis will stare at thousands of collected shoes piled on top of each other and think of how easily there could have been a pair in there for her.

The now-24-year-old Calgary student was driving to her boyfriend's along Highway 22 in the early evening hours of Dec. 6, 2012, when the vehicle in front of her swerved into the ditch.

In the next second she saw why.

"I saw headlights coming right at me," she told Metro Thursday, recounting the incident publicly for the first time. "I swerved and then I just flipped and then I smashed into the guy in front of me because he'd gone into the ditch."

The oncoming truck, with impaired driver Ryan Jordan Gibson behind the wheel, did tear the side of McGillis's Santa Fe and then plowed head-on into a vehicle being driven by Cochrane teen Brandon Thomas, who'd been travelling just seconds behind.

Thomas died on scene.

McGillis walked away from the crash, but her car was totaled. She suffered whiplash and continues to undergo physiotherapy.

She plans to attend an event called the Empty Shoe Campaign at Cochrane's Mitford Ponds this Saturday. Kim Thomas, Brandon's mother, believes she will have gathered more than 2,500 pairs of donated shoes, each a reminder of a life lost at the hands of a drunk driver.

But McGillis has no problems recounting the horror of that night.

Kelly-Anne McGillis nearly died at the hands of impaired driver Ryan Jordan Gibson on a Cochrane-area road in December 2012, swerving out of the path of his oncoming truck at the last second. Cochrane teen Brandon Thomas, who was travelling directly behind McGillis, was struck head-on by the wayward vehicle and died on scene. JEREMY NOLAÏS/METRO

"I think about it all of the time — every day — especially when I get into a car," she said. "A split-second difference and it would have been me. I would have been crushed between both the vehicles ... somebody was watching over me that night without a doubt."

drive by, she often spots Kim at a roadside memorial erected in Brandon's memory.

Reached over the phone while at that very memorial Saturday, Kim said it was a miracle that only one life was lost.

"This road at that time of night is full of vehicles ... so many people could have died that night," she said.

She added, "This is a Canada-wide problem, and we need to hold accountable those that still choose to drink and drive."

The Empty Shoe Campaign event gets underway at Mitford Ponds at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Lower fares should be based on income: Survey

Income, not age, should be the driving force behind who gets discounted Calgary Transit fares, according to nearly half of the people the city's transit branch surveyed.

Since late April, Calgarians have been asked who should pay more for expanded public bus and CTrain service.

Of the 1,500 respondents,

46 per cent said riders' pay stubs should determine trip subsidies. Those who used the online fare tinkering tool collectively suggested seniors should pay 21 per cent more for an annual pass and 10 per cent more for a low-income pass.

"It makes sense for seniors who can afford it to pay more than younger people who can't," said Kim Jones with advocacy group Transit-Camp YYC. "And a younger working person who is making the same as a low-income senior shouldn't be paying more."

Officials with transit were not available for comment Wednesday or Thursday, but they have previously pitched tax bumps or service roll-backs as the only other alternatives to tightening up some of the country's most-generous fare discounts.

Finding efficiencies was the most common of five key themes taken from more than 400 comments posted online. An anonymous commenter was quoted as saying the busing schedule "can and should be tightened up which would reduce bus requirements and costs."

Jones was adamantly opposed to slashing service.

"I would not agree with service cuts as a solution," Jones said. "We already need more service, not less."

"If there are routes that can be improved — sure. But it's not always that easy."

Life and loss. Rescue group saves stray feline after she loses her babies

Animal rescuers are encouraging Calgarians to seek assistance from trained professionals if they come across stray animals after a tragic case of life and loss last month.

The Alberta Animal Rescue Crew Society came into possession of two, days-old kittens after a pair of teenage girls startled a stray feline in labour in a Sunridge alley.

"They literally disrupted her as she was giving birth," said Kim McLeish, the society's cat foster-home co-ordinator. "One was left on the ground and the other literally fell out of her as she was running away."

The teens took the kittens in, but lacked proper knowledge on how to care for them — McLeish said temperature control and proper food sources are key.

By the time the society came into possession of the youngsters, little could be done to save them. They were ultimately euthanized.

But the society attempted to make some good of an awful situation and surprisingly recovered the mother and a third kitten in an area near the initial discovery. Both Elena and her youngster Diego are now in good health and the aim is to adopt them out as a pair.

McLeish said if people do come across strays, they should leave them where they are and call for help, unless they're in imminent danger.

The society will be holding an adoption event at Safe Haven, located at 3505 14 St. SW, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Man charged with sexual assault

Calgary police have charged a man with sexually assaulting two young teens in incidents that date back as far 2007.

Kelly Ross Feser, 46, of Calgary, faces charges of sexual interference with a child under the age of 14, sexual interference with a child under the age of 16, and two counts of sexual assault.

The assaults allegedly occurred between July 2007 and August 2010, when the victims were aged 13 and 16.

Police launched an investigation in late 2013, when one of the girls reported the incident to police, during which time they learned of a second victim.

"It is alleged that the suspect developed a relationship with the girls, who lived in the same community as him, at the time of the offences," said Staff Sgt. Beverly Voros, of the sex crimes unit.

Water flows out of the Glenmore Reservoir through the dam. To prevent the dam from being overtopped by floodwaters in the future — as it was in 2005 and 2013 — the city's expert panel on flood mitigation recommends looking at an underground diversion to take water out another way. METRO FILE

'Science fiction' no longer. Tunnelling a water diversion beneath Heritage Drive could work, report finds

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

It's feasible to build an underground diversion from the Glenmore Reservoir to the Bow River to protect Calgary from future flooding but the project would cost half a billion dollars, according to a new report.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi initially described the idea as "science fiction" when it sur-facted last fall, but has since warmed to the possibility of building a tunnel diversion beneath the city, and the idea has been studied with an increasing level of detail and seriousness.

Preliminary estimates pegged the cost between $200 and $290 million but a new study commissioned by Calgary's expert panel on flood mitigation now suggests the construction price tag would be $457 million.

Factor in environmental mitigation, regulatory costs and land purchases, and the total comes closer to $500 million.

The initial, proposed route for the tunnel was underneath 58 Avenue but the study concludes that building the diversion beneath Heritage Drive would be preferable.

A tunnel nine metres in diameter "would be capable of preventing flooding on the lower Elbow River" in an event of the same magnitude as the 2013 flood, according to the panel's report.

The panel recommends that the tunnel be considered along with the other two upstream mitigation projects the province has proposed — a dry dam at McLean Creek in Kananaskis and a diversion and retention reservoir in Springbank.

Those two projects have the advantage of also offering drought mitigation and being less expensive — about $190 million each.

The disadvantage is that,

Mayor's take

Mayor Naheed Nenshi said Thursday the city will work the province on assessing all three projects. If the tunnel goes ahead, Nenshi said he expects the province "will like pay for the vast majority" of the project.

given the need for major environmental assessments and land acquisitions, "we have no idea on the timelines" for the upstream projects, said Coun. Brian Pincott.

"We know we can do the tunnel and we can do it now," said Pincott, whose Ward 11 includes the proposed tunnel route.

Win or lose, fans love the World Cup

Croatia vs. Brazil.

Fans packed Calgary's Canadian Croatian Cultural Centre to cheer on their team despite a 3-1 loss

JESSICA PATTERSON
calgary@metronews.ca

Thursday's World Cup match between Croatia and Brazil was exhilarating for Jakica Cavar, 16, who watched the game with her brother, sister, father, cousins. Cavar wasn't the only one, as the Canadian Croatian Cultural Centre in Calgary's northeast was packed with fans.

"It's a great feeling to be united collectively by our Croatian heritage," Cavar said, adding that it brought everyone together. "It's such a big thing for little Croatia to be up against big Brazil, especially on their home turf. We're 18th in the world and they're third. For us to get the first goal, it was like winning the game."

Croatia was there to show the Brazilians they were there to play, Cavar said. "We'll shine through with the next game."

There were over a hundred people clad in the white and red checks of the Croatian soccer team's colours in the centre's games room.

Among them was Mateo Vrhovac, 16, who plays soccer with the Calgary Villains Football Club.

"We scored in the first 10 minutes, and we were looking fierce," he said. "And then Brazil started pressing more, and from there it just fell apart. It was a tough match." Vrhovac remains optimistic that the Croatian team will beat their next opponents, Cameroon, on Wednesday.

"Everyone's hyped about it, I've never seen so much excitement about the World Cup before," he said. "I think we can win that one."

Leanne Vodopija and Maria Rimac came out to watch the game and support their team, too. "We wanted to support Croatia," Vodopija said.

They came to support the Croatian team, to be part of the community, to show their spirit and love for their country and support the sport everyone enjoys. "We played very well, we just had some bad breaks," Vodopija said.

Croatia lost to Brazil, 3-1.

Quoted

"We're bound together by the pride we have for our nation and the passion we have for this sport. There's a reason we have a reputation for being the craziest fans." Jakica Cavar

Measles. Outbreak lifted in Calgary, remains in place in Edmonton

Alberta Health Services declared Thursday that the measles outbreak in Calgary is over.

Activity of the disease “has decreased to such an extent” that the outbreak declaration issued on April 29 could be lifted, officials said in a release.

The outbreak declaration was also lifted in Alberta’s central health zone but remains in effect in the Edmonton health zone.

In the zones where the outbreak has been lifted, AHS will no longer be offering the “early additional dose” of measles vaccine to infants between the ages of six and 12 months.

Public health officials had been offering the extra dose of vaccine in order to provide “short-term added protection” to babies during the period of higher measles activity.

Parents who had already booked appointments for their children to receive the early additional dose will see those appointments hon-

AHS recommendations

- All Albertans born in or after 1970 require two documented doses of measles vaccine, to be protected.
- Children in Alberta are recommended to receive these two doses of measles vaccine, administered at 12 months of age and between four and six years of age.

When did buying a home make you a politician?

Recently the residents of Scenic Acres cried foul when plans to turn a park — which has long been designated as a future home of a school — into a school began to move forward. Since the provincial government announced plans to build a francophone school in the neighbourhood, some residents have complained that they were not given notice — which is another way of saying they didn’t do their research before buying in the area.

I guess it could be worse. It’s not as if the community is protesting a school for special-needs kids. Oh wait, that’s exactly what’s happening in Varsity, where residents recently stormed their MLA’s office whining that a new school — again, for special-needs kids — will result in traffic congestion and loss of green space.

Wow. That’s a special level to weigh your needs for green space and a few extra seconds of traffic over those families raising children with special needs.

On all levels of government, our elected officials need to start standing up to residents, especially the vocal minority who complain about everything. Life’s too short and here in Calgary, it’s actually not that hard. We have it pretty good. It seems, more and more, the squeaky wheel not only gets the grease it also gets to bathe in it at the cost of someone else.

The never-ending debate over secondary suites is another example of neighbours being allowed to have way too much input over a matter that will, at of the end of the day, have very little impact on their lives. From what I can tell, they’re worried about parking, even though there’s nothing stopping a homeowner who already lives there from buying five cars. If the biggest problem in your life is the need for parking, you’re doing pretty good. So why are you so cranky?

Really guys?

I guess it could be worse. It’s not as if the community is protesting a school for special-needs kids. Oh wait ...

In a conversation with Ward 3 councilor Jim Stevenson, who earlier this week voted against every single secondary suite application, he advocated for the “rights of homeowners.”

“I don’t think we should be going over applications, one by one, shooting holes in the R1 areas,” Stevenson said. “You’re really taking away the validity of the community.”

He’d prefer to see the rules around legalizing the city’s thousands of illegal suites made easier, although he said he has no plans to bring any motions at city council.

“Not at this time, with my committee work, I have too much on my plate,” he said.

Later in the day, he tweeted that he would support a referendum on the subject — in 2017.

So, add Ward 3 to yet another neighbourhood where a few complainers get to make the ultimate decision for thousands of Calgarians looking for affordable housing or a school for their children.

As a city, we need to start doing a better job thinking about each other.

When did we turn into such curmudgeons?

Calgary communities plan unique celebrations for flood anniversary

Neighbour Day.

Range of activities and entertainment set for sites across the city

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

As the one-year anniversary of Calgary's most damaging flood approaches, people across the city are preparing to gather and celebrate the spirit of community that emerged from the destruction and displacement.

Dirty, debris-filled water from the Bow and Elbow rivers crept into homes and businesses on June 21, 2013, knocking out electricity, and forcing tens of thousands of residents to flee their communities.

But June 21, 2014, is being

On June 21, Calgarians will celebrate the spirit of volunteers like these, who pitched in to help out flood-affected residents a year earlier. METRO FILE PHOTO set aside as a time to remember the best of what came out of the chaos — the kindness and co-operation that citizens extended to one another in dealing with the disaster.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi has dubbed the occasion "Neighbour Day" and encouraged Calgarians to get together and celebrate — and they've heeded the call.

Get involved!

- More information about the range of events taking place June 21st can be found at Calgary.ca/NeighbourDay.

Among the events, big and small, is the Boots and Hearts Thank You Party in Bowness.

There, flood-affected residents are inviting the countless volunteers who came to their aid a year ago back to the community for a street party — including kids entertainment, food trucks and beer gardens — from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

"It's a positive event to thank everyone and take the opportunity to appreciate everything that's happened over the last year," said Bowness Community Association executive director Michelle Dice.

That same afternoon, live music and a free barbecue is also set for the Mission area, also hard hit by last year's flood.

"We're hoping that it's a commemoration, a celebration, and that the community can come together to witness where we are today," Jenn Vanderlaan of the Cliff Bungalow — Mission Community Association said of the event, dubbed "Mission: Possible 2."

Residents in Haysboro, meanwhile, are planning a Neighbour Day parade followed by a "Longest Day of Play" celebration, noting that the date also marks the summer solstice.

"There's going to be food trucks, there's going to be live music," Anna Grose of the Haysboro Community Association said of the event, which will also feature a wide range of outdoor games, sports and activities.

After years in the making, Barb Scott Park opens up

At 12 Avenue and 9 Street S.W. Named after late 24-year council veteran, park opens true to its original concept

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

When Barb Scott Park officially opens on Friday, it will have been years in the making, but the final product will be quite similar to the original idea area residents had in mind.

Beltline Communities president Rob Taylor said the park's design was community driven from the get-go, nearly a decade ago, and literally sketched out by a local group working with their alderman at the time, Madeleine King.

"One day a bunch of us got together with Madeleine in a coffee shop and we sketched a plan on a back of a napkin," Taylor said. "And that's pretty much the plan that is there now."

After a series of community consultations, Taylor added, people wanted to see: open space for recreation, uninterrupted lines for pedestrians and interactive public art.

Michelle Reid, the project manager for the park development, said all aspects from the consultations were integrated in the final design.

"It's very flexible — you can kick a ball there, you can have a picnic there — but we also added a ring to walk around it," she said. "And we added that significant piece of public art at the corner, because it's such a prominent location."

That piece is, Chinook Arc, an interactive, illuminated sculpture that park users can affect by waving their hand to change the lighting sequence.

It's a party!

Park opening celebrations on Friday, June 13

- Noon to 1 p.m.: Mayor Naheed Nenshi, Coun. Evan Woolley, Rob Taylor, and Chinook Arc artists officially open the park.
- 8 to 11 p.m.: Outdoor music, activities, and a celebration of the interactive art piece.

Two nabbed in alleged mail fraud scheme

Woodbine area. Fraud and identity fraud among list of charges

JESSICA PATTERSON
calgary@metronews.ca

A Calgary man and woman are facing charges after allegedly stealing mail and identity information from the Woodbine area.

Following an investigation last month, 37-year-old Gian-Paulo Marco Bellabono and 23-year-old Ashley Sawatzky have been charged with more than 40 offences including identity theft, mail theft, theft over $5,000, credit card fraud, and identity fraud.

Police believe the two were part of an organized crime group.

On May 12, police were called to a hotel on Macleod Trail, for a report of suspicious activity in one of the rooms.

"Investigators found garbage bags full of mail, three notebooks containing numerous pages of credit card and identity information, nine keys believed to provide access to apartment mailboxes, computers, debit cards and credit cards, numerous bank statements of names not belonging to the residents of the room, and a small amount of ecstasy," said Staff Sgt. Kristie Verheul of the Calgary Police Service's economic crimes unit.

Staff Sgt. Kristie Verheul

More than 60 victims were identified, all from the Woodbine area.

"The mail they were taking was a variety of things — bank statements, credit cards delivered to people, government cheques being delivered," Verheul said.

Bellabono is set to appear in court on June 16 and Sawatzky on June 24.

If Calgarians suspect they've been victims of mail fraud, they are advised to contact the Calgary police.

"Anyone expecting mail on a regular basis, if you don't receive your mail, contact Canada Post immediately," Verheul said. "Also consider having online direct deposit into your bank account."

The Big Event. Calgary police expanding outreach

The Calgary Police Service is celebrating the various teams that help keep it running with a family-friendly event this Saturday.

This weekend, the Calgary Police Foundation is hosting The Big Event, which is free to attend and features more than 20 police units, including mounted and K9 units. The foundation focuses on funding education, prevention, and early intervention programs.

Police, along with the City of Calgary, have been creating numerous programs with a focus on involvement in the community.

"It's early intervention, which unfortunately hadn't been addressed in previous years," said Pat Ellis, a team lead for youth justice with the city.

Ellis works with the Gateway Initiative, a partnership between the city and police aimed at boosting police involvement in the community and reaching troubled youth early in their lives to nip crime in the bud.

Within the last few months, police have initiated several new programs, such as an anti-graffiti effort called Up the Wall, a new mountain bike team, and Operation Wonderland, which targeted street-level drug traffickers. KEN VAN DE WALLE/FOR METRO

BlackBerry intercepts used in mob crackdown

Project Clemenza.

Police say more than a million messages were analyzed as evidence, leading to arrest of 31 suspected gangsters

Police in Quebec say they used intercepted BlackBerry communications to take down two alleged organized crime groups operating in the province.

The RCMP said Thursday more than one million private messages were intercepted and analyzed as evidence as part of an operation dubbed Project Clemenza.

Officials from the RCMP and Montreal Police said it is the first time this investigative technique has been used on such a large scale in a criminal investigation.

"This is the most important interception of this kind performed as part of a major investigation in North America," RCMP Supt. Michel Arcand told a news conference.

"One million messages were intercepted between 2010 and 2012 (and) the investigation also included a complex analysis process."

The arrests are aimed at dismantling two cells which police say took over after Operation Colisee seven years ago, an operation aimed at their predecessors.

Police described the cells as linked to Italian-based organized crime in Montreal.

Police said they arrested 31 people in Montreal, Quebec City, Laval and Gatineau.

Iraq. Islamic militants vow to march to Baghdad, say they'll impose Shariah

Islamic militants who seized cities and towns vowed Thursday to march on Baghdad to settle old scores, joined by Saddam Hussein-era loyalists and other disaffected Sunnis capitalizing on the government's political paralysis over the biggest threat to Iraq's stability since the U.S. withdrawal.

Trumpeting their victory, the militants also declared they would impose Shariah law in Mosul and other areas they have captured.

In northern Iraq, Kurdish security forces moved to fill the power vacuum — taking over an airbase and other posts abandoned by the military in the ethnically mixed city of Kirkuk. The move further raised concerns the country could end up partitioned into Sunni, Shiite and Kurdish zones.

Three planeloads of Americans were being evacuated from a major Iraqi airbase in Sunni territory north of Baghdad, U.S. officials said, and Germany urged its citizens to immediately leave parts of Iraq, including Baghdad.

The UN Security Council met on the crisis, underscoring the growing international alarm over the stunning advances by fighters from the militant group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant.

Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki had asked parliament to declare a state of emergency that would give him and his Shiite-led government increased powers, but the lawmakers failed to assemble a quorum.

The Islamic State aims to create an Islamic emirate spanning both sides of the border. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.S. mulling options

- U.S. President Barack Obama is weighing a range of short-term military options, including airstrikes, to quell the insurgency.
- However, officials firmly ruled out putting American troops back on the ground in Iraq.

Manitoba. Winnipeg ER death must be ruled a homicide, lawyer says

Lawyers for the family of an aboriginal man who died during a 34-hour emergency room wait say an inquest judge must rule the death a homicide.

They have also asked the judge to recommend Manitoba call a public inquiry into how aboriginal people are treated in the health-care system.

Vilko Zbogor told Judge Tim Preston that failing to provide medical care to a sick person is akin to failing to provide the necessities of life.

"It was homicide," Zbogor said during final arguments Thursday at the Brian Sinclair inquest. "You just need to find that the death was caused by human contribution."

Police have already investigated the death but did not lay any criminal charges.

It's been almost six years since Sinclair, a double-amputee, died at Winnipeg's Health Sciences Centre after languishing in the waiting room for hours, vomiting and slowly dying from a treatable bladder infection. An internal report following his death found some staff assumed he was drunk and waiting for a ride or was a homeless man seeking shelter.

Murray Trachtenberg, another lawyer representing the family, said those racist assumptions led to his death.

The inquest didn't delve into why those assumptions were made or what to do to prevent them, the Sinclair lawyers argued. The Sinclair family lawyers withdrew from the inquest halfway through when the judge chose to focus on overcrowding in emergency rooms, but they returned for final recommendations. billions spent on sport

Protesters and Brazilian police clashed in Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro and at least three other World Cup cities on Thursday around the first match of soccer's premier event.

Just after the match started, about 300 protesters marched along Rio's Copacabana beach to denounce lavish public spending on a sports tournament in a nation with profound social needs.

The protest was peaceful, but there were worries that could change as several adherents to the anarchist "Black Bloc" tactic were seen in the crowd.

Violence did break out elsewhere.

In Sao Paulo, more than 300 demonstrators gathered along a main highway leading to the stadium. Some tried to block traffic, but police repeatedly pushed them back, firing canisters of tear gas and using stun grenades.

A few protesters suffered injuries after being hit by rubber bullets, while others choked on tear gas.

An Associated Press photographer was injured in the leg after a stun grenade exploded near him. CNN reported on its website that two of its journalists were also injured.

"I'm totally against the Cup," said protester Tamer Mota, a university student at the Sao Paulo demonstration.

"We're in a country where the money doesn't go to the community, and meanwhile we see all these millions spent on stadiums."

Meanwhile, about 300 protesters gathered in central Rio de Janeiro. Police used tear gas and took a few protesters there into custody.

In Belo Horizonte, another Cup host city, about 200 protesters clashed with police. Some smashed the glass doors and windows of two banks.

About 1,000 gathered in Porto Alegre, with some breaking windows and hurling stones, authorities said. Police dispersed them with tear gas and rubber bullets.

Police used the same tactics to scatter about 150 protesters in the capital city of Brasilia, according to the Estado de S. Paulo newspaper.

Intensity down

The demonstrations in recent months have paled in comparison to those last year, when a million people took to the streets on a single night, airing laments including the sorry state of Brazil's public services despite the heavy tax burden its citizens endure.

- Those protests were largely spontaneous and no single group organized them.

- According to David Fleischer, a political scientist at the University of Brasilia, the protests have shrunk because they are "very specific in their aims" and thus "easy for the police to control."
- Because the recent protests have been organized by established groups, there are leaders with whom the government can negotiate.

Papal pep talk

Let's see a good clean game out there: Pope

Pope Francis has a message for the World Cup: Let soccer be a showcase for teamwork and solidarity, not racism and greed.

The Argentine-born Pope recorded a video that aired on Brazilian TV ahead of Thursday's opening match.

In it, Francis said soccer teaches three lessons that can promote peace and solidarity: the need to train and work hard to reach goals, the importance of fair play and teamwork, and the need to respect and honour opponents.

"To win, we must overcome individualism, selfishness, all forms of racism, intolerance and manipulation of people," he said. He said being "greedy" in soccer, as in life, is an obstacle.

"Let nobody turn their back on society and feel excluded!" he said.

Francis, a lifelong fan of the Buenos Aires club San Lorenzo, has amassed an enormous collection of jerseys since his election and has met with many visiting teams. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadians have admitted in a recent global survey they are sometimes lax with their online security even though 56 per cent say they have already been a victim of a data breach. ISTOCK

Canadians do little to protect themselves online

Poll. We value our privacy but aren't proactive in preserving it

Canadians are more concerned about their online privacy than many of their global counterparts and yet they're also less likely to take proactive measures to secure their personal information, suggests a new study.

Nearly two-thirds of Canadians polled said they believed they had less privacy online than they did a year ago, according to a report by the IT company EMC, which conducted online surveys with 15,000 web users in 15 countries.

Globally, the average was 59 per cent.

Canadians were the second-least likely to say that they'd be willing to trade some of their privacy for "easier access to information and knowledge," behind only the German-born respondents.

About 85 per cent of the Canadians polled said they believed it will become more difficult to cling onto a safe degree of privacy online in the next five years, versus 81 per cent of all respondents.

But Canadians admitted they could do more to protect themselves on the Internet.

Nearly seven in 10 said they did not regularly change their online passwords, versus the overall average of 62 per cent.

One in three said they didn't worry about changing their privacy settings when joining social networks, which was in line with the global average.

And about four in 10 said they didn't have a password protecting their cellphone from being accessed, compared to 39 per cent of all the respondents.

Surveillance. White House pushing local cops to zip it

The Obama administration has been quietly advising local police not to disclose details about surveillance technology they are using to sweep up basic cellphone data from entire neighbourhoods, The Associated Press has learned.

Citing security reasons, the U.S. has intervened in routine state public-records cases and criminal trials regarding use of the technology. This has resulted in police departments withholding materials or heavily censoring documents in rare instances when they disclose anything about the purchase and use of such powerful equipment.

Sealers blame thick ice, blocked markets for drop in landed pelts

The Canadian Sealers Association blames heavy sea ice and trade issues for a big drop in the commercial hunt off Newfoundland this spring.

Executive director Frank Pinhorn says just fewer than 55,000 harp seals were landed compared to 91,000 last year and 69,000 in 2012.

Pinhorn says about 65 boats went out compared to 45 the year before but many had trouble getting through unusually thick sea ice.

He says the number of seals landed was far below the federal quota of 400,000 while the price held steady at about $35 for the best pelts.

The association is calling on Ottawa to more aggressively deal with seal product bans that block access to mar-

Ending 'culture of impunity.' Brad Pitt joins Angelina Jolie at London summit tackling sexual violence in conflict zones

Brad Pitt joined Angelina Jolie at a London summit on sexual violence Thursday, lending the couple's star power to the campaign to end rape in war zones.

The four-day London conference is organized by British Foreign Secretary William Hague and Jolie, a United Nations special envoy.

They hope representatives of the more than 100 countries present will back a new protocol laying out how sexual violence in conflict zones should be investigated and prosecuted. They say they want to end the "culture of impunity" for wartime sex crimes.

Billed as the biggest-ever summit on the subject, the gathering has drawn diplomats, officials, charity representatives and survivors of wartime rape.

Jolie said the meeting, which ends Friday, was being held "for all the forgotten, hidden survivors who have been made to feel ashamed or been abandoned."

"And for the children of rape — we want the whole world to hear their stories and understand that this injustice cannot be tolerated, and that sorrow and compassion are not enough," she said.

Hague and Jolie have made an odd but effective double act as they've campaigned against sexual violence for the past two years.

Hague said the Maleficent star "has the power to speak to the whole world, to raise awareness, change attitudes. Governments like the one I am a member of hold in their hands levers of decision-making and action."

Sgt. Bergdahl. Facebook posts, personal writings show soldier's frustration

In Facebook posts written before he vanished from his military base in Afghanistan, Sgt. Bowe Bergdahl spoke of his frustration with the world and his desire to change the status quo.

He criticized unnamed military commanders and government leaders and mused about whether it was the place of the artist, the soldier or the general to stop violence and "change the minds of fools."

In his personal writings, he seemed to focus his frustrations on himself and his struggle to maintain his mental stability.

Bergdahl, the only U.S. soldier held captive in Afghanistan, was recently released after five years as a prisoner of the Taliban. In exchange, the U.S. released five detainees from a detention centre in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The circumstances surrounding the prisoner swap have raised a national debate.

Zoo watches for signs of panda pregnancy after insemination

The Toronto Zoo says it's monitoring one of its giant pandas for signs of pregnancy following artificial insemination.

Er Shun, one of the pandas on loan to Canada from China, was artificially inseminated in April, but the zoo says pandas' long gestation period makes it hard to know if it worked. It says staff will only find out about 20 days before Er Shun is set to give birth, and they're preparing her for an ultrasound.

The zoo says pandas only have one chance per year when they can breed and the breeding window lasts just one to three days. The male panda, Da Mao, is too young for breeding, so sperm was flown in from China for the procedure. THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I wish we would have known about this. We probably could have salvaged her."

A member of the Orange County Task Force on Hoarding's executive committee.

Orange County firefighters wearing hazmat suits had to climb over vegetation and trash piled 1.5 metres high to get to a yard where a woman died in a chair amid debris with a kitten in a carrier on her lap.

County Register reports that firefighters arrived Tuesday night at the Rosewood Avenue home of Rita Corpin, 72, who was pronounced dead in her yard. No foul play is suspected. Corpin owned two other Orange County homes where animal control officials attempted Wednesday to capture more than 60 feral cats. The retired high school history teacher owned two dogs and fed area cats regularly, Santa Ana police Cpl. Anthony Bertagna said.

Because her home was so full of debris, Corpin lived alone in a truck in her driveway, Bertagna said. It took officials several hours to remove Corpin's body from the property because of the trash and overgrown plants.

Over time, the hoarding and neglect at Corpin's properties prompted 26 contacts by Santa Ana city officials, city spokeswoman Tanya Lyon said.

The city levied fines and warned Corpin about her properties' poor condition, but she eventually refused to allow city officials on her properties, Lyon said. By making small changes, Corpin prevented the city from seeking a search warrant to perform inspections.

The Orange County Task Force on Hoarding said the group had not worked with Corpin.

Businessman's grave ransacked

Three people, including a daughter, are accused of ransacking the grave of a U.S. businessman in search of his "real will," only to find a pack of cigarettes in his hand.

Eddie Nash died of a heart attack in 2004 at age 68. His cemetery vault in New Hampshire was found cracked last month, the casket opened and his remains searched. The body was left intact.

An arrest affidavit names Ginette Dowse, 71, Michael Day, 37, and Nash's daughter, Melanie Lynch, 52.

Lynch had made comments about her father being buried with "the real will," a police affidavit said.

Day was arrested Tuesday and jailed on charges of interference with a cemetery and criminal mischief. His lawyer didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment Thursday.

Dowse and Lynch are out on bail.

Six killed, 29 injuredExplosion and gas leak at an India steel plant

At least six people were killed and 29 more injured in an explosion and a subsequent gas pipeline leak on Thursday at a government-run steel plant in central India, a plant spokesman said.

The accident happened in Bhilai steel plant in Chhattisgarh state, 35 kilometres west of Raipur, the state capital.

PakistanU.S. drone attacks resume

Missiles from U.S. drones slammed into militant hideouts overnight in north-western Pakistan, killing 13 suspected insurgents and marking the resumption of the CIA-led program after a nearly six-month break, officials said Thursday.

The strikes were swiftly condemned by the Pakistani government, with the Foreign Ministry saying in a statement that they were a violation of Pakistan's sovereignty and its territorial integrity.

The strikes came just days after a five-hour siege of Pakistan's busiest airport ended with 36 people, including ten militants, killed. It was not clear if the drone strikes were connected to the airport attack.

Stone throwers vs troops

Two 17-year-old teens, Nadim Nawara and Mohammed Salameh, were killed May 15 during intermittent confrontations between Palestinian stone throwers and Israeli troops.

Preliminary autopsy findings show that a Palestinian teen killed during a lull in a West Bank confrontation between stone throwers and Israeli troops was shot dead by live ammunition, two human rights groups said Thursday.

The Israeli military has denied use of live ammunition in the May 15 incident, insisting troops only used rubber-coated steel pellets, a standard means of crowd control.

Troops are only permitted to use live ammunition in life-threatening situations.

Two 17-year-old teens, Nadim Nawara and Mohammed Salameh, were killed that day, during intermittent confrontations between several dozen Palestinian stone throwers and Israeli troops on the outskirts of the West Bank town of Beitouniya.

The teens were killed in the same spot but more than an hour apart.

Their deaths drew world-wide attention in part because their final moments were captured by security cameras.

In each case, the footage showed the teen walking in the street, a few metres from a wall where others were taking cover.

The Israeli human rights group B'Tselem said at the time the teens posed no threat to soldiers, raising "grave suspicions" that they were victims of wilful shootings.

BRAZIL READY TO SAMBA

The wait is over. Brazil kicked off the 2014 FIFA World Cup with a football-style Carnival before thousands of dancing yellow-clad fans, who seemed eager to put construction delays and protests behind them. To get you in the game, Metro has you covered with the latest from Brazil.

J-Lo helps World Cup kick off in style

Singers Jennifer Lopez, Pitbull and Claudia Leitte perform during the opening ceremony of the 2014 FIFA World Cup Brazil before the Group A match between Brazil and Croatia at Arena de Sao Paulo on June 12, 2014 in Sao Paulo, Brazil. J-Lo — who turned up for the performance despite earlier reports that she wouldn't be able to attend — rapper Pitbull and pop star Leitte bounced around a giant stage that resembled a peeled melon. They sang the World Cup theme We Are One as Brazilian band Olodum banged drums below, on Brazil's Valentine's Day. Will soccer outshine the protests?

The sun rose Thursday on a tropical nation hosting its first World Cup in 64 years. Nearly half the world's population, well over three billion spectators, are expected to watch soccer's premier event and get a glimpse of the country that in two years will host the Summer Olympics.

But just hours before play was to begin, it still wasn't clear which Brazil we would see. Would it be the irreverent nation known for its festive, free-wheeling spirit? Or would it be the country that, for the past year, has been a hotbed of fury over poor public services, discontent over a political system widely viewed as corrupt, and deep anger over the $11.5 billion US spent on hosting the World Cup?

"The world is going to see multitudes cheering for soccer — but also demanding that our country change," Helen Santos, a school teacher, said as she walked home in Rio de Janeiro. "The world needs to see that we're a serious country. We're not just a nation of soccer, but a country striving and demanding the government provide better education and health care. The world needs to see the reality of Brazil, not just the sport."

Street protests have lessened in size since last year, when Brazilians staged raucous rallies against the government, overshadowing the Confederations Cup soccer tournament. For two weeks, dozens of places were roiled by unrest. Whether Brazilians have moved past such disruption is uncertain.

"I hope the soccer outshines the protests, but I also know there remains a climate of anger," said Edson Carvalho, an office assistant watching 10 barefoot young men play a pick-up soccer match in Rio's Botafogo neighbourhood. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brazil takes cup for sticker shock

What things cost in Brazil

Brazil protects its local industries by charging high tariffs on imported goods.

THE iPhone 5s COSTS $649 IN THE U.S. BUT HAS A STARTING PRICE OF $1,250 US IN BRAZIL.

A PEPPERONI PIZZA WILL COST YOU $35 IN BRAZIL.

BRAZIL'S $6.28 BIG MAC IS AMONG THE MOST EXPENSIVE IN THE WORLD.

World Cup visitors, welcome to Brazil, land of soccer, sun and sky-high prices.

Unlike nearby Latin American nations where a tourist's U.S. dollar or European Union euro seemingly stretches forever, Brazil is astoundingly expensive.

If one's budget isn't immediately busted by the flight or the hotel, it will soon be done in by the $10 US caipirinha cocktail and the $17 cheeseburger. And those are the prices city-dwelling Brazilians saw even before the World Cup set off a new standard of sticker shock.

The dizzying prices are referred to here as the "Custo Brasil," or "Brazil Cost" — the mixture of high taxes and steep import tariffs, combined with bad infrastructure, a dose of inefficiency and a thick shot of bureaucracy.

Demand leading up to a big event like the World Cup naturally raises prices. But, since costs already were high to begin with, tourists should prepare to dig deeply into their wallets and not be too miffed to receive goods or services of inferior quality, said Rafael Alcadipani, a business administration professor at the Getulio Vargas Foundation, Brazil's top think-tank. "Anything you buy in Brazil will be more expensive than in the United States or Europe, but the quality is going to be worse," he said.

Hotel rates in many of the World Cup host cities more than doubled ahead of the tournament. Massachusetts-based TripAdvisor reports visitors to Rio will face the highest prices, with hotel rates averaging $445 per night. Even the more affordable host cities will set travellers back a good amount: $457 per day in Cuiaba and $477 in Sao Paulo.

"The Cup prices are ridiculous. Everything shot up. The only thing you can buy in Brazil is a bikini, a cachaca (Brazilian sugar cane liquor) and a pair of Havaianas (sandals)," said Gillian Santos, a Brazilian who now lives in Belgium. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bank of Canada. Governor predicts a 'soft landing' for heated housing market

Bank of Canada governor Stephen Poloz still believes the housing market is due for a soft landing but warns: Look out if it crashes.

The central banker made the assessment after the release of the latest semi-annual financial system review, a kind of stress test on financial weak spots that suggests a crash in Canada's real estate market would have devastating impact on the economy.

And such a crash could be triggered by a number of events — a recession that causes widespread unemployment, rising interest rates and even global shocks like failures in China's opaque shadow banking system. All such events would dampen growth and cut demand and prices for Canadian resource exports.

Still, Poloz told reporters at a news conference following the release of the report Thursday that he believes the worst won't happen.

Worst-case scenario

A crash would have system-wide implications, the report makes clear, affecting highly indebted households, the economy generally and some financial institutions, such as credit unions, which may be more vulnerable to defaults.

"We still are pretty confident ... that we will achieve a soft landing in housing," he said. "It's vulnerable but not risky."

Deputy governor Carolyn Wilkins says data backing the soft landing scenario includes a slowdown in housing starts, cooling in the construction of condos and the plateauing of household debt ratios, although at levels near those that existed prior to the U.S. meltdown in 2008.

It's POM Wonderful news for juice maker

Sweet justice? Top U.S. court rules Pom can go forward with lawsuit alleging competitor's label is misleading

Coca Cola's version of pomegranate juice is not quite the real thing, and a competitor has another chance to prove it in court.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday sided with juice maker Pom Wonderful in its long-running false advertising dispute with the Coca-Cola Co., a decision that could open the door to more litigation against food makers for deceptive labelling.

The justices ruled 8-0 that

Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging the label on a "Pomegranate Blueberry" beverage offered by Coke's Minute Maid unit is misleading because 99 per cent of the drink is apple and grape juice.

Lower courts had ruled in favour of Coke because the label conforms to the law and to Food and Drug Administration rules. But the Supreme Court reversed, finding that the juice label may technically comply with FDA rules but may still mislead consumers for different reasons.

Energy. Soon you'll be able to get yourself and your phone a jolt at Starbucks

Soon you may not have to fumble or fight for a power outlet to charge your phone at your neighbourhood Starbucks.

Starbucks and Duracell say they are rolling out Powermat wireless charging devices in stores in San Francisco. The charging spots will expand into other major markets in 2015, and the companies plan to put the devices in all Starbucks and Teavana locations over time.

The companies say stores will have "Powermat Spots," designated areas on tables and counters where customers can put their compatible smartphones and charge them wirelessly.

Most smartphones and devices on the market now are not compatible with the Powermat stations, although some with the built-in capability are starting to emerge, according to IHS, a market researcher. People can also buy Powermat accessories to charge devices that aren't compatible, Starbucks noted.

CHEAP TRICKS AND OTHER ACTS OF GOD

1 World Cup. You say football; I say soccer. Whatever, it's the biggest sports tournament on Earth, and it finally got underway in Brazil, despite a melee of protests, strikes and various other failures to launch. The Canadian team is chronically unable to qualify for the tournament, so we have to hope for somebody else. This year's favourites are Brazil, Argentina, Germany and Spain, but why not root for Africa's Cameroon, which punches way above its weight, unlike Canada?

2 Dead heat. Another tourney that wasn't resolved before my column-writing deadline was Thursday's Ontario election. Voters seemed underwhelmed by the choices: the Liberals and Kathleen Wynne, the Conservatives and Tim Hudak, and the NDP and Andrea Horwath. Before results were in, pollsters were calling it too close to call. Of course, after blowing both the B.C. and Alberta calls, pollsters have a recent history of being wrong, so maybe they were just hedging their bets. Horwath is the Cameroon of Ontario politics, and her chances seemed about as good.

3 Right, right, you're bloody well right. Speaking of politics, this is what it has come down to in the U.S.: An extreme right-wing Republican, Eric Cantor, who is also the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives, lost the primary, which is basically the nomination, to an even more extreme right wing Tea Party Republican, the appropriately named David Brat, who accused his seven-term rival of not being extreme enough. It worked, at least among the anvil chorus voting for Republican primaries in Virginia. "It's a miracle from God!" crowed Brat, revealing that God is registered to vote in Virginia.

4 Another day, another rampage. Hardly a day goes by without another shooting rampage, the latest a protracted gun battle on the usually bucolic seawall along Vancouver's trendy False Creek. Crazed gunmen and mass shootings have become such a common occurrence, we're almost numb. But it took a photo of Danny, the K9 companion of RCMP officer Dave Ross, to bring the tragedy of gun violence home. The photo, of Danny the German shepherd sniffing his master's hat and looking around for him at the funeral, went viral this week, and will continue to haunt us in the days to come.

5 There's always Justin Bieber. It's not quite comic relief, but it will do. Notorious Canadian twit Justin Bieber continues to make the wrong kind of news, this time for getting caught on video using the N word, not once but twice. It doesn't really matter that both incidents happened when he was 14 and 15. His goose is now pretty much cooked and he's barely out of his teens. Fresh out of PR spin, he's turned to God, and was recently baptized in a New York pastor's bathtub. Well, whatever works, but I suspect God is too busy helping the Tea Party Brat to take care of ours.

Pothole vigilantism goes artsy

The perfect pothole might not exist for many people — but for artist Jim Bachor, it's one with a nice oval shape. Bachor began filling potholes a little more than a year ago, after one in front of his house became a hassle. He doesn't just fill them with cement, though. He's turned pothole-filling into a public art project. He fills them with mosaics. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public art, practical outcome

While his art isn't a permanent solution to the problem, it's at least a small fix, he says. The city hasn't shut down his project, and some community members have expressed gratitude. Gerry Shaheen says Bachor and his crew are welcome anytime to fill potholes in his city. "I'll pave the way for them," Shaheen said with smirk. "No pun intended." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Designs

- Bachor uses the Chicago city flag design in his pothole art.
- Some versions hold phone numbers to local auto repair shops, while others simply read POTHOLE.
- His most recent installment — #21914 — pokes fun at the huge number of potholes that exist in the city.

Synopsis

The 21 Jump Street high school undercover cops Schmidt and Jenko (Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum) are back, but this time they're narco cops. That is until they botch an investigation into drug lord Ghost's (Peter Stormare) operation. Their failure gets them demoted back to the 22 Jump Street (they moved across the road) program. Jump Street's Captain Dickson (Ice Cube) sends them undercover, as unlikely brothers Brad and Doug McQuaid, to college to arrest the supplier of a drug named WHYPHY (WiFi). The bumbling, but self-confident duo infiltrates the college, but campus life threatens to blow apart their partnership.

Jump Street. Tatum and Hill's second outing as bumbling cops takes self-aware jabs at the business of sequels

Richard: Mark, Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum are producers on the new Jump Street film, which, I guess, explains all the jokes about how much everything cost.

At one point Hill actually says, "It's way more expensive for no reason at all."

I don't know how much the movie cost to make,

but the self-aware jokes did make me laugh even though it is essentially a remake of the first film, with a few more Laurel and Hardy slapstick gags and amped-up explosions.

What was your take?

Mark: Richard, I liked this instalment way more than the previous outing.

I loved all the self-referential gags, including the brilliant end-credits that hilariously make fun of the inevitable sequels that will follow.

I credit the directors, Phil Lord and Chris Miller, for the knowing pop culture sophistication they brought to the film.

They directed the first one, too, but they've grown more confident since their Lego Movie hit, which also tweaked the audience's expectations in a similar way.

RC: The end credit sequence, which maps out the next sequels from number 3 to installment 43 — they go to Beauty School and Magic School among other places of higher learning — is probably the funniest part of the movie.

The stuff that comes before is amiable, relying on the Mutt and Jeff chemistry of Hill and Tatum for laughs. It's boisterous and aims to please, but best of all are the self-referential jokes.

By clowning around about the difficulty in making the sequel better than the original, they're winking at the audience, acknowledging that this is basically a spoof of Hollywood sequels.

It's subversive, meta and kind of brilliant.

MB: Yep. Because I can see explosions and pratfalls in any "action comedy"; it's the subversive stuff that makes this movie stand apart.

The intergender fight sequence between Jonah Hill and Jillian Bell (who is incredible throughout the film) is as subversive a take on sexual politics and

"rape culture" that you will ever find.

It's these kinds of scenes that kept me laughing through the picture. The black stoner twins, played expertly by The Lucas Bros, were a masterpiece of writing and comic timing.

RC: I agree, but ill-timed jokes about Maya Angelou and Tracy Morgan were sore thumbs for me, but that's more coincidence, I guess than bad taste.

MB: I don't think those jokes were deliberate, but they sure broke the spell for me.

But then Ice Cube's comic rants got me back.

Why Australia is perfect for post-apocalyptic films

The Rover. Aussie filmmaker takes to his home to film tale about a man out for revenge in a hostile world

EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Australian filmmaker David Michod made quite a first impression in Hollywood with his 2010 debut, Animal Kingdom, so a lot of eyes were on him as he chose a followup. That choice is now here in the form of The Rover, a simple post-apocalyptic tale about a man (Guy Pearce) out for revenge against the guys who stole his car.

Australia seems to lend itself to these post-apocalyptic settings.

I love this kind of movie, people stranded in a really inhospitable landscape. And in some ways it doesn't get more inhospitable than Australia largely because 80 per cent of the country is desert and there are so few people out there. It's both epically beautiful and wholly terrifying when you're out there, because you know that only a couple of little things would need to go wrong and you could die. For instance, New Zealand doesn't really have any animals, so there's lots of beautiful stuff to look at, but it also makes it a little bit dull. I realized how much I love roaming in the bush in Australia because of the fact that at any moment something that might kill you could pop out.

The Rover opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

Of course, in The Rover it's more the people that might kill you.

In a way, it's a kind of geopolitical inversion of the world in present day, because the world of The Rover in a way sort of exists on the planet today. It just happens to be in super-violent, resource-rich countries like Nigeria or West African states where there still is an infrastructure and official organization, but it's just incredibly cutthroat, and there is violence bubbling under the surface at all times.

There is a sort of sense of anger threaded through this narrative.

I can't remember at what point in the writing process this started to happen, but I started to funnel a lot of my anger and despair into the world of the movie and specifically into Guy's character — anger at the willingness that the people today seem to have to just let the world fall into disrepair solely to service the rampant greed of a very small number of people. You look at the invasion of Iraq on a certain level, and it would seem to me that the only reason that administration embarked on that ludicrous endeavour was to enrich their friends. I mean, to cause so much suffering in order to enrich a small number of people is pathologically evil. And it's difficult, when you think about these things, not to get angry.

Two talk-show hosts are bound for a presidential chat in North Korea but find themselves given a conflicting mission by the secret service in The Interview.

Due this fall, the comedy sees James Franco and Seth Rogen's characters discover that Kim Jong-un loves their celebrity news show.

Seizing the opportunity to land an exclusive interview and sidestep from showbiz gossip into serious reportage, the buddies set off for North Korea.

But the CIA soon co-opts their travel plans by recruiting them as secret agents and giving them a licence to kill.

Lizzy Caplan of Masters of Sex and Cloverfield plays their long-suffering CIA handler, while Korean-American actor Randall Park (Larry Crowne, The Mindy Project) becomes Kim Jong-un.

Rogen and Evan Goldberg co-direct, just as they did on This Is The End.

The interview is set for release on October 10 in North America, one year after filming started, with global release dates in the weeks that follow.

Pedro and ligers and tots, oh my!

Gosh! Ten years after cracking us up as Napoleon Dynamite, Jon Heder reflects on the movie that launched his career

Of all the memorable lines in Napoleon Dynamite, the quirky comedy that introduced the world to “ligers” and “Vote for Pedro” T-shirts, there is one that gets hollered at star Jon Heder more than any other.

“Tina, you fat lard, come get some dinner,” says Heder, easily adopting Napoleon’s indignant, breathy voice after all these years.

The line — directed at his grandmother’s pet llama, Tina — perfectly captures the offbeat tone of the 2004 film.

Made for just $400,000, the movie was picked up by Fox Searchlight and Paramount after premiering at the Sundance Film Festival and made $46 million worldwide.

Heder, now 36, celebrated the film’s 10th anniversary this week with other cast members in Los Angeles, where a statue of Napoleon was unveiled on the Fox Studios lot. In a phone interview with The Canadian Press, he said the film’s cult following continues to this day.

“I think people really related to Napoleon, whether they felt like him growing up or knew someone like that,” he said. “Even though it’s kind of over-the-top and funny, he’s trying to get skills, he’s trying to figure out what he’s good at and everyone can relate to that.”

“What are you gonna do today, Napoleon?” “Whatever I feel like I wanna do. Gosh!” THE CANADIAN PRESS

The bizarre comedy set in a rural Idaho town follows Napoleon, a frizzy-haired teenager with a permanent slack-jawed expression, and the unusual characters around him: his shrimpy brother Kip; football-obsessed Uncle Rico; and shy, crafty friend Deb, played by Tina Majorino.

Director Jared Hess took inspiration from his own rural upbringing while writing the film with his wife, Jerusha. His brothers even worked at the chicken farm where Napoleon toils, and the llama actually belonged to his mother — although her real name was Dolly, not Tina.

“After the film screened for the first time at Sundance, my mom came up to me afterwards and said, ‘Well, that was a lot of embarrassing family material,” said Hess with a laugh.

“The character of Napoleon, especially — I come from a family of six boys and just about everything that is said in the film or happens in the film, my brothers either said or experienced firsthand.”

Hess wrote a short film featuring the Napoleon character about a year and a half before the feature. He was struggling to find the right actor to play the central role, before he remembered Heder from one of his classes at film school.

“I acted out for him the voice and some of the mannerisms of how he was supposed to sound and look, but then Jon took it and ... he just became the character and totally brought him to life,” Hess said.

When Heder read the script for the short film, he said he immediately identified with the Napoleon character because he also grew up in a big family of boys.

“I got it right away,” Heder said. “I knew exactly who that person was because so much of Napoleon was in my younger brothers and in myself. We had very similar experiences. I loved it. I was like, ‘This is genius.’”

Neither expected the film to go on to be a smash hit or attract a cult following that has lasted a decade. Heder, who later appeared in the Will Ferrell comedy Blades of Glory and Kristen Bell romance When in Rome, said that at first he struggled with the spotlight.

“Getting recognized, I got used to it, but it was weird. It changed everything. I’ve forever got this thing — it can either be a cloud or a rainbow — just hovering over you that is the movie Napoleon Dynamite,” he said.

Asked whether he ever gets tired of being so closely associated with one character, Heder said: “I would, if I really didn’t like him.

“But I love the movie. I’m so blessed that it was my first film,” he added. “It’s very close to my heart ... I was kind of moving on with my life (at that time). I got married. I was starting my career, and I couldn’t have asked for a better way to do it.”

Over the years, the film has spurred countless fan tributes — a YouTube search for “Napoleon Dynamite dance” reveals just how many people have dutifully learned and recreated Heder’s improvised boogie to Jamiroquai’s Canned Heat.

But Heder says the strangest fan request he ever received happened while he was speaking at a college several years ago. A fan wanted Heder to recreate a scene where Uncle Rico throws a steak at Napoleon’s head.

“This kid came up with a steak and he wanted me to throw the steak at him as part of a retribution act for what Uncle Rico did to me,” recalled Heder.

“So I got to throw a steak at someone and I nailed him and it felt great,” he said.

“He loved it. Everybody was cheering him on. He felt like a rock star. I felt like a rock star. It was a win-win.”

There's a mini-British Invasion of sorts going on this weekend at the Bonnaroo Music & Arts Festival in Manchester, Tenn. Here are five acts we're particularly interested in — and don't forget you can stream many of the performances if you're not one of the 80,000 down on the farm.

Arctic Monkeys

Listen to any rock radio station for 30 minutes and you'll likely hear the Arctic Monkeys. The Sheffield, England, quartet began as buzzed-over darlings eight years ago and survived that experience to mature into a formidable, lasting act that's learned the art of keeping our attention.

Bonnaroo bands with buzz

James Blake

It will be interesting to see how London producer and singer-songwriter James Blake's minimalist sound will go over at Bonnaroo, where sound bleed gives the advantage to the raucous. Listen closely, though. Blake is one of electronic music's most interesting artists, and he earned a Grammy Award nomination for best new artist last year.

Sam Smith

James Blake took a nod for best new artist last year, and you can bet neo-soul crooner Sam Smith from London will pick one up this year. The BBC's Sound of 2014 winner is one of the hottest singers on vinyl this year and his star is only going to get bigger. Check him out while you can still catch him at one of Bonnaroo's more intimate stages.

Disclosure

Guy and Howard Lawrence of Grammy-Award-nominated Disclosure and Smith broke through together when the Surrey sibling duo featured Smith on their breakthrough Latch a few years ago. Like Smith, the Lawrences have drawn attention since then and are seen as one of electronic music's most promising acts.

Chvrches

This synthpop trio is from Glasgow, Scotland, and their sparkling songs built around singer Lauren Mayberry's wispy vocals feel both new and comfortingly familiar — if you're old enough to remember the first wave of British synthpop bands all those decades ago. Mayberry has the same star-making appeal of Smith. Here's your chance to get on board early.

To Brit singer-songwriter Jake Bugg, touring America is a real Shangri La

Bonnaroo and beyond.

Young upstart is eager to be winning fans out on the road

Jake Bugg has been keeping busy in America since the release of his second album, the Rick Rubin-produced Shangri La, late last year. He wrapped up a headlining tour of sizeable theatres with a rousing sold-out show at the Ryman Auditorium in Nashville earlier this year, hit Ellen and American Idol, and did a flyby of the South by Southwest conference in Austin, Texas, last March on his way to the West Coast to play for Jimmy Fallon.

Now Bonnaroo starts a small run of festivals and theatres for Blake, and later this year, he'll open a run of dates for The Black Keys.

"I just love touring the States and seeing everything," said the 20-year-old roots rock-influenced singer with the raspy voice. "But you can't tour it if you have nobody to play to and the thing with festivals and the like is not everybody's there to see you, so it's an opportunity to make some new fans and build your fan base."

Bugg has been using his journeys to gather ideas for a

Ramblin' man

"He just sort of seems to be channelling an old spirit, like an old sailor from long ago or sometimes like an old blues man or something."

Brendan Benson, Raconteurs singer-guitarist and collaborator on Jake Bugg third album, and the trip to Manchester, Tenn., for this weekend's festival won't be his only trip to the area. He plans to return later this year and visit Memphis, home to many of his influences, like Stax Records.

"You know, I might go in there and it might not be happening or I might go in there and really love it and just get inspired and just want to spend some time there," Bugg said. "It's just about enjoying myself sometimes. I just want to enjoy myself and go trace back some of my musical roots and my heroes and stuff like that, and just see what happens."

This musical tourism paid off for Bugg on Shangri La as he collaborated with new friends in new locations. He found safe harbour in The Raconteurs singer-guitarist Brendan Benson's studio in Nashville. The sessions produced album standout Kingpin and two other strong songs.

"Jake's kind of a rare bird," Benson said. "He's so young, but he's got this kind of old man wisdom about him in his lyrics. He just sort of seems to be channelling an old spirit, like an old sailor from long ago or sometimes like an old blues man or something. It's a pretty strange thing to witness coming out of such a young kid's mouth."

It's all eyez on Broadway as musical full of Tupac songs takes the stage

Holler If Ya Hear Me.

Production follows fictional storyline about young men on the streets of the Midwest

T. MICHELLE MURPHY
Metro World News

The buzziest production hitting Broadway is Holler If Ya Hear Me, which adopts the music and lyrics of celebrated rapper Tupac Shakur. Although the soundtrack will be familiar, the plot follows a fictional storyline. It's about young men in the Midwest struggling with love while navigating life on the streets. We spoke with lead Christopher Jackson (Bronx Bombers, After Midnight) ahead of opening night, June 16.

Everyone is asking: If it's not a Tupac biography, what's Holler actually about?

It was inspired by Tupac's music and written by Todd Kreidler, about a character named Vertus who is waking up and coming to terms with the fact that his best friend is back from jail. He had a really big problem with some of the decisions he had to make regarding his friend and his girlfriend and his mother, and on behalf of his brothers, so lots of stuff happening in a very short amount of time.

Is it intimidating to present Tupac's music in this format?

No, it's fun! I've been a fan of his my whole life, so to be telling the story using his lyrics and his music is pretty fulfilling for me. As an actor who grew up in the hip-hop generation, it's great to be a part of another show that highlights this culture in the '70s and exposes a world to the world of Broadway, the storytelling aspect of what hip-hop really has become and all it has been.

Holler If Ya Hear Me opens on Broadway Monday. CONTRIBUTED

How does hip-hop fit on Broadway?

Hip-hop is obviously one of the greatest cultural movements of my generation. I think it's great theatre just on record, in terms of the storytelling aspect, the personalities that exist in it, the musical influences and the way that it's affected just about every aspect of our culture. I think it's the natural progression to see it on the Broadway stage ... Of course there are more traditional styles, musically, but to characterize something as a Broadway show, I think that whole paradigm has shifted. You've got jazz musicals like After Midnight, you've got hip-hop like In the Heights. I think finally Broadway is starting to reflect our culture in a larger sense and developing a larger audience in the process.

And you're introducing his music to a new generation.

A lot of people bring up the fact that it's the young people that will come out — but folks in their 30s and 40s and even their 50s listen to hip-hop as well. It's always just sort of been seen as a young culture, but Jay Z's 38! And he's arguably one of the most popular artists in the world. I don't think that it's just for 15-year-old kids.

3 songs for the weekend

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS

Baroque pop, hard punk rock, and some slow, melodic summer jams. Now that's variety!

I Know You Know/ Andrew Judah

A Kelowna, B.C. musician who describes his sound as "baroque pop". This is the second single from his upcoming album, Monster. Nice Philippines-shot video, too.

Multi Media World/Parkdale Hookers

This "Toronto-based business conglomerate, hedge funk and alternative rock group" (complete with a CEO and a Chief Marketing Officer) has been around since 2001. Echo Bubble Overdrive is the followup to a 2005 debut album.

You Can/ Tearjerker

If you remember noise-pop bands like Lush, Catherine Wheel and Slowdive, you'll appreciate what this Toronto trio does. You Can is a track from their latest release, an EP entitled Hiding.

Video game review

Name. Tomodochi Life

For. Nintendo 3DS & 2DS

Rated. Everyone

It's up to you to create all the characters for this strange game of awkward conversations and bizarre costumes. Buying your villagers gifts and watching their antics is entertaining, but it's the mini-game quizzes, fantasy quests, and Frisbee tosses that actually give you something to do, and yet they only appear at inconvenient hours of the day. The rest of the time there's little activity and only your own characters to play with. There's nothing wrong with Nintendo playing at being surreal, but they've forgotten how to be engaging, too. KRIS ABEL

MMVAs. Kendall and Kylie crazy excited to host Much award show

Fresh off a teleprompter flub at the Billboard Music Awards, Kendall Jenner says she's relaxing ahead of her upcoming hosting gig with sister Kylie at the Much Music Video Awards.

"We don't want to think too much about it. If we think too much about it, we'll get really nervous and work ourselves up. We're just relaxing and getting excited," she said.

The teenage sisters — reality TV personalities and members of the Kardashian brood — say they have only seen snippets of the show in the past, but are expecting a "big, fun party."

Their first time hosting an awards show comes just weeks after Kendall appeared to misread the teleprompter at the Billboard Music Awards and joked, "I'm the worst reader, you guys."

When asked about the slip, whispering between the sisters and their manager could be heard, before Kendall replied, "Next question. Sorry."

But Kendall, 18, said she and Kylie are excited about the opportunity to host the MMVAs this Sunday. Asked several questions about what viewers can expect, the sisters wouldn't share many details — urging fans to tune in and find out.

"We just want to make it fun. This is obviously our first time, and we're not perfect, so we just want to have fun with it and do the best we can," said Kendall.

The daughters of Bruce and Kris Jenner, the teens have been appearing on Keeping Up With the Kardashians for years, alongside half-sisters Kim, Khloe and Kourtney.

Asked which artists they're looking forward to seeing, both Kendall and Kylie said 17-year-old New Zealand singer-songwriter Lorde was at the top of their list. "I missed Lorde at Coachella so I really wanted to see her, so I can't wait to see her," said Kylie.

The MMVAs will be held Sunday outside CTV headquarters in downtown Toronto and be simulcast on Much and CTV. Other performers include Hedley, Imagine Dragons, Kiesza, Ariana Grande, Ed Sheeran and the Sam Roberts Band.

Crooner Sam Smith is a wide open book

'Just an honest person'. The neo-soul singing Brit recently opened up about his sexuality in a talk with Fader magazine

Emotive British neo-soul singer Sam Smith recently opened up about his sexuality in an interview with Fader magazine, sending minor ripples through the broad pool of music press on both sides of the Atlantic.

As Smith prepares to release his spine-tingling debut, In the Lonely Hour, in North America this Tuesday, he acknowledges that he watched to see how his comment — that the album's lovedrunk gut-punches were inspired by a guy he fell for last year who didn't return his feelings — would reverberate.

"I don't read album reviews, but I've been reading the stories about my personal life — which is completely fine," the 22-year-old said in a recent telephone interview from London.

"I was expecting it. I said what I said for a reason. And yeah, it's interesting just to read, isn't it? The whole past few years have been interesting, just to see what the world is like sometimes."

And in the hurricane of interviews and coverage, does Smith feel accurately portrayed?

"Oh, one million per cent," he replied. "You're getting my personality spot-on. I am highly emotional and also very loving and caring and I'm just an honest person."

"And I think people are feeling that honesty."

They're certainly feeling some element of Smith's forward-thinking sound, which marries his expressive, opu-

Sam Smith is fine with his personal life being public. THE CANADIAN PRESS/CONTRIBUTED lent vocals to elegantly uncomplicated backdrops, ranging from the dignified piano and strings of Stay With Me to the buoyant electronics of Money on My Mind.

Both those tracks have topped the chart in the U.K. — and his Naughty Boy collaboration La La La breathed the same rarefied air — while Stay With Me has climbed to No. 10 in Canada, too.

His success at home isn't necessarily surprising — he received both the BBC Sound of 2014 Award as well as the prestigious Brit Awards Critics' Choice trophy — but he's stunned at the quick development of his career stateside, where Brit artists typically face a more arduous path to success.

A goosebumpy choir-aided performance on Saturday Night Live in March certainly helped — Smith, by the way, says host Louis C.K. was "so lovely" — but there's also the fact that Smith draws from predominantly North American influences, citing Etta James, Joni Mitchell and Beyoncé (always Beyoncé) as the artists he listened to most while making

An uplifting album

Smith's debut is hardly the funeral drag one might expect given the heart-wrenching inspiration.

- His unflagging romanticism imbues the record with a sort of uplift. When informed of this, Smith is enthusiastically thankful.
- "When I called the album In the Lonely Hour, I think I kind of shot myself in the foot in a way — because it's a sad title," he said with a laugh. "But I thought of it more as a brave title."

his record.

Still, Smith concedes that the attention is a little overwhelming. He's only years removed from attending high school in the sleepy commuter town of Bishop's Stortford. He moved to London at 18 and wrote his debut album two years later while mired in a deep funk.

"(Life) was pretty lonely," he said of first moving to the city. "London's a big place. All my friends were back where I'd grown up in the countryside. And also I fell in love with someone who didn't love me back when I wrote the album — which probably made it easier to write music but harder to live life."

To Smith, unrequited love was largely unexplored territory in pop music.

"I feel like there hasn't been a body of work that's really properly dealt with it head on in a simple pop way or a soulful way," said Smith, who has performances scheduled in Toronto and Vancouver in September. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Lion Guard, which will air in 2015, is set to be the first of a series of spinoffs. AFP

Starting in 2015, Disney will launch a series of TV spinoffs of its 1994 animated movie. Kion, Simba and Nala's second-born cub, will be the star of a new TV movie slated to air on the Disney Channel.

The Lion King was a smash hit with moviegoers when it debuted in 1994, bringing in nearly $800 million at the global box office. Twenty years later, Disney is hoping to prolong the success of the franchise with The Lion Guard.

The forthcoming TV movie, scheduled to air in 2015, will follow Kion and his troop of lions responsible for protecting the jungle and the Lion Kingdom. The spinoff will include some of the iconic characters from the original feature, including Timon the meerkat and Pumbaa the warthog. Additional related spinoffs are expected to follow in 2016. AFP

Don't get too attached to HBO's True Detective

Nic Pizzolatto. Show's creator says doing the show is such hard work that he can only see it going on for three years max

The creator of HBO's dark and brooding crime drama True Detective says fans of the popular show had better not get too attached over the long term.

"Each season I'm essentially creating a brand-new TV show and it can't have any growing pains like a regular first season. It has to work right out of the box and that's incredibly exhausting," Nic Pizzolatto said in an interview Wednesday at the Banff World Media Festival.

"I'm writing every episode, so I can't imagine I would do this more than three years. I'd like to have a regular TV show with fixed sets and regular actors," he said with a chuckle.

The first season starred Matthew McConaughey and Woody Harrelson, who were both executive producers, as well as Michelle Monaghan, Michael Potts and Tory Kittles. It used multiple timelines to trace the hunt for a serial killer by two Louisiana State Police Criminal Investigations Division homicide detectives over 17 years.

Pizzolatto said he's written two scripts so far that's he's happy with. But he has a message for people who believe rumours about who will be cast in season 2.

"Not a single rumour about

Woody Harrelson and Matthew McConaughey on True Detective. HBO

Quoted

"Not a single rumour about casting that has been printed anywhere has any truth to it whatsoever."

Nic Pizzolatto, creator of True Detective casting that has been printed anywhere has any truth to it whatsoever. I've seen entertainment reporters say 'my sources say' and there are no sources. There's me and two other guys and they don't even know what I'm doing," he said.

"We haven't approached anybody yet. When I get back we're going to be meeting with directors and get the casting process into full gear," said Pizzolatto.

"We have four primary POV (point of view) roles we will really need to focus on and once those are in place we'll know the shooting schedule for sure. Right now we're planning to start in the fall."

The newfound attention and success has been a bit difficult for Pizzolatto, who is notoriously reclusive and does his best to avoid any social media.

"I'm pretty hard to actually get a hold of by design," he said.

"This has all been very new to me and what I've had to do is just find a distance for myself. We got here by me working in a vacuum towards my own vision for better or worse and then not compromising on it," said Pizzolatto.

"I'm not going to allow that sort of speculation to influence the way I work, and at the same time in order to work the way I work I cannot be engaging total strangers on the Internet to explain my work to them. I even kind of think it denigrates the work a little bit." THE CANADIAN PRESS

After Gourmet, a Delicious foray into fiction

Ruth Reichl. Former editor-in-chief finds inspiration for her first novel in old letters from her food magazine days

When Gourmet magazine was shuttered after almost 70 years, editor-in-chief Ruth Reichl found an old filing cabinet that was filled with letters — mostly complaints and requests for recipes. They inspired her to write a series of fictional missives that ultimately formed the basis for her first novel Delicious!

"I wrote the Lulu letters in one fell swoop," said Reichl, referring to the book's 12-year-old cooking enthusiast who writes letters to chef James Beard during the Second World War. "Her voice was so real to me. I had been doing a lot of research into World War II because it's a period that interested me. I can't really explain why I did it, but I did."

After Reichl's contractual

Ruth Reichl, the former editor-in-chief of Gourmet magazine, has written her first novel, Delicious! THE ASSOCIATED PRESS obligation to Gourmet was complete, she "went home and cooked for a year." Then her editor suggested she write a novel. Reichl decided to draw on the letters to tell the story of protagonist Billie Breslin, who leaves her family in California to move to New York for a job at food magazine Delicious!

Reichl, who grew up in Greenwich Village and helmed Gourmet for 10 years, takes the reader on Billie's food journey, from the test kitchen at the magazine to restaurants to artisanal shops. Then, when Delicious! is abruptly shut down, Billie finds Lulu's letters — which help her understand various issues in her own life.

Reichl, who has received six James Beard awards, knew Beard personally.

She dedicates the book to Beard's assistant, Marion Cunningham, with whom she was close. "I invented Lulu, but I think if there had been a Lulu, he would have written back. He was generous to his readers and I think he would have loved this little girl."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

A ripe old forage

As part of her research, Reichl took a class on foraging, which she imagined would be a natural thing to do with war rationing.

- "It's fascinating how much wonderful edible stuff we're surrounded with that we just ignore all the time. ... The history of milkweed just kind of blew me away. The foraging teacher said it's edible in all its forms.
- "So I didn't have a problem going out and cooking with that floss and then I discovered that during World War II they actually did enlist schoolchildren to go out and gather the floss because they needed it to make life preservers because they couldn't get kapok anymore. It came from Japan."

Sizzling summer book puts the heat on marriage after mistress

Courtney Maum COLIN LANE

Through a keyhole darkly. Novel about cheater who tries to woo back wife is not your typical beach read

Metro World News

It all started with a note taped on the outside of a French art gallery. The note read (in French), "Mr. Architect, you were wearing an elegant hat and you wanted to buy the blue bear. Please contact me." Courtney Maum was living in Paris at the time and experiencing years of writer's block, but that one note sparked the idea for her new extremely buzzy novel, I Am Having So Much Fun Here Without You.

The protagonist is a British artist named Richard who paints rooms as they appear through a keyhole, but he is more obsessed with pining over his ex-mistress than his art — or his wife. He starts regretting his affair about the same time his wife is done with him. "In my family history, everyone cheated on everyone else and got divorced. I found myself wondering, 'Did anyone try to work it out?'" Maum tells us.

Because the book addresses infidelity, early reviewers and readers are dissecting it, trying to pull marital lessons from these fictional characters. But that doesn't intimidate Maum. "I'm pretty flattered by that," she says. "I remember thinking that people who are married or think about marriage a lot would like this book ... It's a bumpy road. Marriage is freaking awkward. You're not psyched after eight years to get into bed with the same person," she says.

Richard has many other flaws — besides the whole having a mistress part — but as a reader, you can't help but root for him. Finding the balance of creating a character who was funny, dark, flawed and likable all at the same time wasn't easy for Maum. "When I wrote the first version back in 2002, I got a lot of rejection letters," she says. "All the editors thought Richard was too unlikeable. At first I just thought they just weren't risk takers, but when I read the manuscript again 10 years later, I realized they were right." Maum says she wrote as if she was sitting there with him and his wife in the kitchen with the baby upstairs. "I wrote with my heart," she says.

A bumpy road

"Marriage is freaking awkward. You're not psyched after eight years to get into bed with the same person."

Author Courtney Maum

Maum grew up in a conservative city in Connecticut, lived in France for five years and now splits her time between Paris, New York City and the Berkshires. Immersing herself in cultures all with vastly different views on marriage seems to have greatly influenced Maum, and her novel is stronger because of it. This book may not be the feel-good read of the summer, but it will stick with you.

Pippa embarks on bike race across this side of the pond

MELINDA
TAUB

Metro World News in New York City

Next time you're driving in America, glance at the bike lane. Do you see a lovely butt and very shiny hair? You may be sharing the road with a princess-adjacent socialite. Beginning June 15, Pippa Middleton is biking across America.

Pippa and her brother James Middleton are participating in the Race Across America, a cross-country bicycle race from Oceanside, Calif., to Annapolis, Md. They'll be part of an eight-person relay team with their friend James Matthews, raising money for the foundation named for James' brother Michael Matthews. Michael Matthews passed away at the age of 22 while descending from Mount Everest. The foundation begun in his name raises money for education for poor children around the world.

If you want to cheer on the Middletons, I would aim for the nice flat Illinois bit to see her at her best. I imagine the Rockies are terrible for hair shininess. Of course, Pippa's part of an eight-person relay team, so you might spot a random rugged Englishman instead of Her Buttiness, but those are nice too.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Bieber says I love you, one deleted Instagram photo at a time

Social media is the bane of the fickle heart, as Justin Bieber is proving with his erratic postings pertaining to on-again, off-again girlfriend Selena Gomez.

While it has seemed that the couple had finally split for good in recent months, Bieber doesn't seem so sure. Just this week, he posted a close-up photo of the two in an embrace with the caption, "Our love is unconditional."

Suggesting a tentative Romeo, he quickly deleted the posting — but not before many of his 16 million Instagram followers screen-grabbed it and re-posted it.

Pink is the new white when it comes to casual back deck sipping wine. Rosé has been the warm weather go-to for Europeans for years and Canada is starting to catch up.

Sadly, our opinion of blush wines has been influenced by white zinfandel: a popular, but polarizing, version that's typically confectionary and usually sweet (most rosé is dry). Though pleasant enough, their reputation as a simple tippie for those new to wine hasn't done classic rosé styles any favours.

A rosé's pink hue comes from dark grape skins coming into contact for a short while with the juice. The longer they're together, the darker the wine.

Spain has a history of rosé production using indigenous grape varieties. The Marqués de Cáceres 2013 Rosado ($13.95 - $16.29) is made from tempranillo and its balance of juicy, berry fruit with a refreshing dryness is a benchmark. As well as tasting great, rosé wines are fantastic with food — especially if the dish is eclectic or has an aggressive, dominating flavour.

Grilled Caramelized Onion and Feta Pizza. Don't limit this family favourite to a hot oven. It can easily be made in your backyard

Onions are a bit of a reflex buy for many. Every time these people go to the grocery they always buy a bag of onions. They're a kitchen staples so you must always be about to run out, right? It's a good theory. But if that was the case, you wouldn't currently have 15 pounds of onions on the counter.

That's where this grill-friendly way of using a whole mess of caramelized onions comes in. The pizza is topped with onions and garlic, spiked with caraway seeds and golden raisins, finished with roasted red peppers, pine nuts, and crumbled feta for a kind of Middle Eastern take on grilled pizza

1. Set the pizza crust, in the bag, on the counter to come to room temperature.

2. Meanwhile, in large, heavy pot, such as a cast-iron Dutch oven, over medium heat, melt the butter. Add onions and cook, stirring often, for 20 minutes. Stir in raisins, garlic and caraway seeds, then cook another 3 minutes, or until onions are significantly reduced and caramelized. Stir in the red peppers, then transfer the mixture to a bowl and set aside.

Ingredients

- 20-oz ball purchased pizza crust
- 2 tbsp butter
- 2 medium yellow onions, thinly sliced
- 1/3 cup golden raisins
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp caraway seeds
- 12-oz jar roasted red peppers, drained and sliced
- Olive oil
- 1/3 cup pine nuts
- 1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese

3. When the onions are done, heat the grill to medium-high. On a lightly floured counter, roll the pizza dough out to a 14-inch round. Brush the top of the dough with oil, then transfer it to a large plate or platter for carrying it to the grill. Have your remaining ingredients prepared, then bring everything to the grill.

4. Flip the dough onto the grill, oiled side down, and cook for 5 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and puffed. Reduce the heat to medium-low, then brush the top of the dough with oil. Use tongs to flip the dough.

5. Spread the onion mixture evenly over the crust, then sprinkle it with pine nuts and feta. Cover the grill and cook for 4 to 6 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and the feta is softened. Serve immediately.

Neymar's brace keeps party jumping in Brazil

World Cup. Hosts open tournament with 3-1 win; Croatia shaken by controversial penalty

Neymar gave Brazil a winning start to its home World Cup, scoring twice to lead the host nation to an unconvincing 3-1 victory over Croatia in the opening game on Thursday.

In his 50th match with Brazil, the 22-year-old forward scored a goal in each half to help the hosts survive an early scare and escape disaster in front of a packed Itaquero Stadium after Croatia had taken an early lead.

Marcelo found his own net while trying to clear a low cross by Ivica Olivic in the 11th minute, but Neymar then showed why the nation's high hopes are all pinned on him.

He equalized in the 29th minute, clearing a defender in midfield before making a run toward the edge of the area and firing a perfectly placed low shot that went in off the post.

The game turned on a controversial penalty awarded by Japanese referee Yuichi Nishimura in the 71st minute when striker Fred went down inside the area under minimal contact from defender Dejan Lovren.

Neymar scored from the spot for his 33rd goal with Brazil. The Barcelona star got a standing ovation when he was substituted near the end of the match.

The Croatians were furious. "If that was a penalty, we should be playing basketball. Those kinds of fouls are penalized there," Croatia coach Niko Kovac said.

"That is shameful, this is not a World Cup referee. He had one kind of criteria for them and another for us. The rules were not the same," Kovac said.

Cristiano Ronaldo

Portugal star taking precautions

Cristiano Ronaldo cut short a training session with Portugal on Thursday, leaving the field with an ice pack over his left knee — indicating that his tendinitis may still be bothering the star forward.

Ronaldo trained with the rest of the team for about 15-20 minutes doing physical exercises but then did not take part in the rest of the session with full ball drills.

Instead, he stretched on his own and signed a few shirts for fans before going to sit on the bench. When he left, he had an ice pack over his left knee.

Ronaldo has been bothered by left leg injuries ahead of the World Cup, and was sidelined for two weeks with tendinitis in the knee and a thigh problem.

However, Portugal midfielder Joao Moutinho said there was nothing to worry about concerning Ronaldo's health.

"Ever since he started to train with us he has been 100 per cent like the rest of us," Moutinho said. "Everything is fine with him... The ice is normal after training."

Henrik Lundqvist made 40 saves and got a little bit of luck to keep the Rangers alive with a 2-1 win over the Kings in Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final on Wednesday night in New York. BRUCE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES

Best not good enough in this cup final

NHL. After Game 4 effort fell short, Kings will try to wrap up cup in sunny California

After feeling satisfied about his team's play in three losses to open the Stanley Cup final, New York Rangers coach Alain Vigneault could easily empathize with the Los Angeles Kings when the roles were reversed in Game 4.

"It was a real tough game, I think, for L.A.," Vigneault said. "It was probably their best game of the playoffs that they've played against us."

And it was a loss, as the Kings failed to finish off the sweep thanks to 40 saves by Henrik Lundqvist, one by Anton Stralman and one by a combination of snow built up in the crease and Derek Stepan. That the Rangers needed so much luck and strong goaltending only underscored just how dominant Los Angeles was.

Just don't tell the results-oriented Kings that. Even after players talked after wins about needing to play better, the self-criticism was turned up despite outshooting the Rangers 41-19.

"At the end of the day, we weren't good enough to win," captain Dustin Brown said. "It's about finding a way to be better."

The chance to do that comes in Friday's Game 5 back in Los Angeles with the Kings still in command of the series and the cup waiting nearby.

After Game 4 at Madison Square Garden, it didn't feel as though the Kings were on the cusp of the title, like it did after they went up three games to none. All around the visiting locker-room there was talk about what areas needed to be better, from start to finish.

"We still probably could play better for a full game," fourth-line centre Mike Richards said. "It took us a little bit to get into it again for whatever reason." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Point of attack

"I think (there were) couple of times where we didn't make it tough on him. The pucks were sitting there. But the pucks he's going to see, he's going to stop. That's just how it is."

Kings forward Anze Kopitar on Rangers goalie Henrik Lundqvist

Lesser role

Richards a rare sight

Brad Richards looked to be on his way out of New York in 2013, when former Rangers coach John Tortorella not only demoted the veteran centre but scratched him in the playoffs.

A year later, coach Alain Vigneault started down the same path by putting the 34-year-old on left wing of the Rangers' fourth line in Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final. Richards played just nine minutes 22 seconds at even strength and a total of 13:20.

Vigneault said he met with his lines individually, including Richards, Brian Boyle and Derek Dorsett. He wanted to spell out his reasoning and assignments.

"I mean, at this time of the year it's only about one thing: It's about the team," Vigneault said Wednesday after the Rangers' 2-1 win.

Richards has no points in the final and just four goals and four assists in 23 games since a strong opener against the Philadelphia Flyers. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Players union accepts league's new deal

The CFL Players' Association has voted to accept a new collective bargaining agreement with the league.

The union said in a statement Thursday night that its players voted to accept the five-year contract reached Saturday with the CFL.

"It's a YES!" offensive lineman Peter Dyakowski, a player rep with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, tweeted. "We've got a new CBA!"

"It's time to get back to football! #Everybodywins."

Split vote

"The mood is mixed. Guys are entitled to their own opinion and every man is going to make his own choice."

Argonauts centre Jeff Keeping, a member of the union executive

The CFL's board of governors is scheduled to vote on the deal Friday and the expectation is they'll accept it.

The CFLPA didn't provide a breakdown of the votes but a majority of players — 50 per cent plus one — on six of the nine CFL teams was required for the deal to be accepted.

The players voted in favour despite many expressing their unhappiness publicly and on social media about the deal. It offers a $5-million salary cap in the first year of the agreement after the CFLPA had originally sought a $6.24-million cap.

It's just 'Johnny Backup' for now

Johnny Manziel's No. 2 jersey has double meaning.

He's behind Brian Hoyer. Browns coach Mike Pettine said Hoyer is "securely ahead" in the competition to be Cleveland's starting quarterback this season, but his lead over Manziel isn't "insurmountable."

After the Browns ended their three-day mandatory mini-camp Thursday, Pettine sized up the battle as a friendly fight that will heat up when the team opens training camp late in July.

NBA. Billion-Air Jordan: Hoops great still on the rise

Michael Jordan has reached billionaire status.

Forbes Magazine estimated Thursday that Jordan's equity as owner of the NBA's Charlotte Hornets is $416 million and his net worth outside of the team is $600 million. It reported Jordan now owns 89.5 per cent of the Hornets.

Jordan's spokeswoman Estee Portnoy confirmed to The Associated Press that Jordan purchased an additional stake in the Hornets in January of 2013, but wouldn't say how much. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hudson pulls Giants out of slump

Tim Hudson threw seven strong innings and left with a major league-best 1.81 ERA as the San Francisco Giants avoided a four-game sweep, beating the Washington Nationals 7-1 on Thursday.

Michael Morse got three hits and scored twice for the Giants, who had a five-game winning streak before Washington came to town. The Nationals have lost just twice in 10 games.

Hudson (7-2) allowed one unearned run and six hits. He walked two, struck out five and improved to 3-0 in his last five starts. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kevin Gausman gave up one run over six innings and Delmon Young homered as the Baltimore Orioles beat Mark Buehrle and the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2 on Thursday night.

Nick Markakis had two hits and an RBI for the Orioles, who moved within 3 1/2 games of first-place Toronto in the AL East.

Gausman (2-1) allowed five hits, walked three and struck out three in his second consecutive solid outing. The 2012 first-round draft pick stymied Oakland on June 7 after being recalled from Triple-A Norfolk and now appears to be a fixture in the starting rotation.

Zach Britton worked the ninth for his sixth save. The victory wasn't secured, however, until a replay review confirmed the final out on a double-play grounder.

Buehrle (10-3) yielded four runs and eight hits in 6 1/3 innings to lose his second straight start following a six-game winning streak. The left-hander allowed three runs or fewer in 12 of his previous 13 starts.

Toronto has lost three straight and five of six.

Baltimore needed just two at-bats to take a 2-0 lead. Markakis led off with a single and the seldom-used Young sent a changeup into the seats in left field, his first home run since April 8 and only the fourth against Buehrle this season.

It was the eighth straight game in which Toronto allowed the opposition to score first.

Down 3-0, Toronto got a run in the fifth when Juan Francisco doubled and came home on a single by Melky Cabrera.

That would be the only flaw in an otherwise solid performance by Gausman, who was 0-1 with a 6.14 ERA in his previous four appearances against Toronto. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ex-NFL DB back in the game north of the border with Argos

Matt Ware wasn't ready to call it a career just yet.

For two years Ware worked as a personal trainer in California, waiting for another chance to play pro football. There were workouts and discussions with other clubs after being released by the NFL's Arizona Cardinals prior to the 2011 season, but nothing concrete materialized.

That is until January, when the Toronto Argonauts came calling. So instead of pursuing a job as a firefighter as planned, the 31-year-old is trying to kick-start his pro career in the CFL.

"I came here because I felt I had unfinished business," Ware said following Thursday's practice at York University. "I still have a love for the game and felt like I left (NFL) on bad terms.

"I still want to play."

The six-foot-three, 218-pound Ware played seven NFL seasons with Philadelphia and Arizona. He spent two years with the Eagles, who selected the former UCLA star in the third round, 89th overall, in the 2004 draft, before joining the Cardinals.

Ware played 95 career NFL games, his three starts all coming with Arizona. He recorded 115 tackles, one interception, three forced fumbles and one fumble recovery while playing in two Super Bowls (2004 with Philadelphia, 2008 with Arizona).

But Ware wavered about wanting to return to the NFL.

"It's all in the Lord's hands," he said. "If I come up here and do a great job, who's to say I wouldn't just stay here?"

"I'm grateful for the opportunity to be an Argo."

Winnipeg. Marve getting 'Bomber love' in his quest for backup QB job

Robert Marve knows that when you give Winnipeg Blue Bomber fans something to cheer about, you feel the love.

Marve is one of three quarterbacks coach Mike O'Shea says are in the running to back up starter Drew Willy for the Bombers.

He spent a scant few minutes on the field last Thursday at the end of a 24-22 loss to the Toronto Argonauts but didn't waste a second.

He rushed for 17 yards and connected with three out of four passes, including one for a touchdown to rookie receiver Donovan Kemp.

It gave fans a reason to cheer, and they responded in person and on Twitter.

"I did get some Bomber love," he said Thursday after practice. "That was nice. The fans are awesome and I appreciate all the support."

Marve will get another chance to play Saturday when the Bombers visit the Calgary Stampeders in Calgary, but coach Mike O'Shea couldn't say how much.

"We'll see all four," he said. "Now how the time's broken down, we'll see how it all plays out. But the plan right now is, as I said yesterday, to give Drew all the time he needs to feel comfortable and for the offence to get comfortable with him."

Willy also didn't sound too concerned Thursday about how much time he will get as the team plays its last pre-season game before their CFL home opener against the Argonauts June 26. THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was something unusual in the opening round of the U.S. Open.

A bunch of scores in the 60s.

The best one of all was turned in by Martin Kaymer.

His confidence spurred by a win at The Players Championship, Kaymer birdied

A master's touch

"You just have to position the ball correctly at all times."

Graeme McDowell, 2010 U.S. Open champion
On the solid, mistake-free golf needed to win this tournament three of the last five holes Thursday for a 5-under 65, the lowest score from any of the three Opens played at Pinehurst No. 2.

The German got up and down for par at the 18th hole, rolling in a testy six-foot putt to beat the 66 shot by Sweden's Peter Hedblom during the second round in 2005.

Graeme McDowell, Kevin Na and Brendon de Jonge were three shots back.

Kaymer beat a loaded field at The Players last month, snapping a stretch of 29 tournaments without a victory stretching over 18 months.

Ten other players were in the clubhouse at 69, meaning there were more under-par rounds in this opening round than the last two years combined. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Murray finally loses on grass

Andy Murray was denied his 20th successive win on grass when he was beaten 7-6 (10), 6-2 by Radek Stepanek in the third round at Queen's Club on Thursday.

Murray, the defending champion and No. 3 seed, claimed his first match win at Queen's in 2005 and went on to win the Wimbledon warmup three times.

But he failed to take advantage of eight set points after leading the first-set tie-breaker 6-2, and Stepanek survived to convert with his second set point.

Tennis. Nadal loses to relative unknown

Rafael Nadal was knocked out in the second round of the grass-court Gerry Weber Open on Thursday, losing 6-4, 6-1 to German wild card Dustin Brown.

"The only way I could have tried to do more was resisting with my serve, something I hadn't practised a lot these days," said Nadal.

Brown, the world No. 85, broke Nadal's serve at the fifth attempt to win the first set, and he pulled off two audacious lobbs in succession to break the Spaniard again early in the second. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Don't get uptight if someone says something you disagree with. Stay calm, tell your side of the story and then listen to theirs. Don't be surprised if what they say makes sense.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You'll be in an impulsive mood today and there is a danger you might fall out with someone you should be on good terms with. Don't start a war of words just because you don't care for the way they do business.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Don't let others dictate to you because once they get the idea that you can be ordered about they will make your life a misery. Make sure they know you can bite as well as you bark.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

If you allow yourself to be talked into doing something you don't want to do today, you will regret it for weeks or months to come. There's no easy way to tell people you can't help them. Just say "no".

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

The full moon could have you doing things and saying things that will cause problems of a romantic nature. Handle affairs of the heart with a great deal of care over the next 48 hours.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Because today's full moon cuts across a powerful angle of your chart you must be ready for those around you to overreact in some way. On the home front there will be times when logic goes out the window.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You seem a bit excitable but that's OK — most likely nothing bad will come of it. In fact this looks like being a good time for you, especially if you are traveling or planning a vacation.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

There is no reason you should not go out and have a good time but that does not mean you have to buy drinks for everyone. You have been far too generous of late.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The full moon in your sign could see you acting out of character today and you may even make a fool of yourself. But what does it matter? It's all good, clean fun.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may not be able to make sense of what is happening at the moment but don't worry. You aren't the only one who is having a hard time getting a grip on reality. Once the full moon fades all will be revealed.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The more you socialize now, the more likely it is you'll learn something to your advantage. Before the day is over you will be good friends with someone who shares your beliefs, ideals and taste for adventure.

Pisces

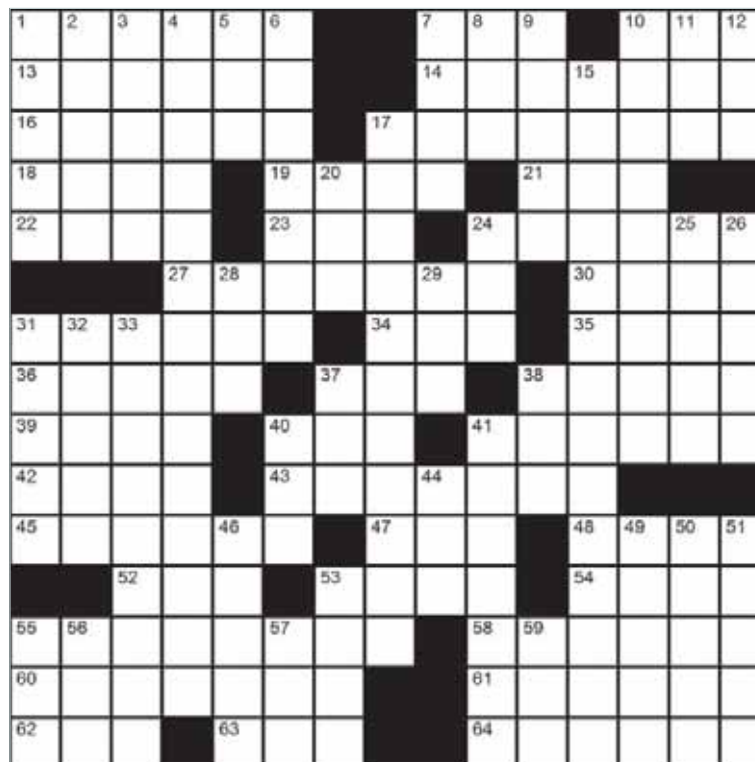

Feb. 20 - March 20

Resist the temptation to tell an employer what you really think of them today. It won't work out right. If you cannot say something nice then it might be wise to say nothing at all. Think of your future. SALLY BROMPTON
